Hoover Group Urges Super Agencies To Standardize Food and Clothing

Creation of two top-level central agencies in the Department of Defense, one to handle food and the other clothing for all the Armed Services, was recommended in this week's report of the Commission on Organization of the Executive Branch of the Government (Hoover Commission).

These respective agencies, the Commission urged, should make central purchases for all the Services; should establish and maintain inventory controls; consolidate and have charge of all warehouses and depots for food and clothing; and undertake all inspection except upon receipt at bases.

Furthermore, the Commission recommended that the food agency establish

SERVICE COMMISSARIES

The Hoover Commission warned this week that the operation of commissary stores in the military services will play a large part in its forthcoming report on "Federal agencies which compete with private business."

"Congress," the Commission said this week, "since 1949 has provided that commissary stores should be operated only where other stores either were not available within a reasonable distance or did not sell food at a reasonable price. These rules have been stretched extensively, to say the least."

The Commission charged that Commissaries in 1954 cost the government "at least $18 million more than they took in from sales."

Pentagon Cracks Back At Commission's Charges

The Defense Department, which had virtually remained silent in face of strongly worded attacks, this week reacted publicly to a series of Hoover Commission reports charging waste and inefficiency in the Armed Forces.

The rebuttal came from Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson, Assistant Defense Secretary for Supply and Logistics Thomas P. Pike, and from Navy Secretary Charles S. Thomas, specially summoned by Mr. Wilson to a news conference on 26 Apr.

Called upon by the Secretary to give his viewpoints on the Hoover Commission action, described in detail in recent issues of THE JOURNAL, Mr. Pike said:

"It is extremely unfortunate from the standpoint of the very many able men in the military service particularly, as well as civilians down here in the Department of Defense who are well aware that we have many problems yet to solve. . . .

"The listing of atrocities, some of which are old, many of which are not factual, and many of which are misleading, I think, is an unfortunate thing from the standpoint of the public because they don't get a balanced picture," Mr. Pike continued.

On this count, Secretary Thomas noted that the Hoover Commission report on Food and Service reports a 60-year supply of canned hamburger in the Navy.

Servicemen will not object to deductions in take-home pay if it means increased benefits for their survivors, spokesmen for the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps and Coast Guard told Congress this week.

They were testifying in support of the proposal (THE JOURNAL 23 April) to equalize and improve Survivor Benefits, including placement of military personnel under Social Security.

VAdm. James L. Holloway, jr., USN, Chief of Naval Personnel, told the Hardy Select Committee of the House of Representatives that inadequacy of present Survivor Benefits possibly is a "more serious weakness" in career service than pay.

Admiral Holloway declared that "enactment of a realistic and adequate law governing survivor benefits should be considered of paramount importance in our effort to re-establish a military career as a sought after and respected, as well as an exacting, profession."

Speaking for the Air Force, Maj. Gen. Morris J. Lee, USAF, Director of Personnel Planning, said an effective Survivor Benefits plan should (1) provide uniform benefits for survivors of all members similarly situated; (2) relate such benefits to active duty earnings; and (3) place military personnel under Social Security on a full participating basis.

General Lee pointed out that "all too frequently the death of a Service member has resulted in a drastic lowering of the

Lt. Gen. Pate Seen Likely Successor To Gen. Shepherd; Shift 20 Marine Generals

Coincidental with reassignment of 20 Marine Corps general officers, there was speculation this week that Lt. Gen. Randolph McCall Pate, USMC, would become new Commandant of the Marine Corps.

The four-year tour of General Lemuel C. Shepherd, jr., USMC, expires on 1 Jan. 1956. It is believed unlikely that he will be reappointed for a second term since he reaches his 60th birthday in February 1956. At the present time, there are five lieutenant generals on active duty. Four of them appear to be out of the running for appointment to the four-star post.

Maj. Gen. Elmer J. Rogers, USAF, Deputy Chief of Staff for Plans to General Maxwell D. Taylor, USA, will replace General Magruder in Tokyo.

As THE JOURNAL went to press, General Pamler, 55, had yet to be nominated for four-star rank, although that promotion was anticipated shortly.

Increase in Regulars Talked of in Congress

Plans for expansion of Regular officer strength by thousands were being pushed at the Pentagon this week in the wake of newly disclosed Congressional testimony affecting Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps.

The Air Force revealed it is considering appointment of 7,500 additional Regular officers in a 12-month period. This is almost three times the number of Regular appointments in the Air Force during the last six years.

Air Force Secretary Harold E. Talbott told the House appropriation committee that his Service now has about 23,746 Regulars and 104,144 Reservists on active duty. The Air Force told the legislators that a proposal has been initiated to boost from 27,500 to 35,000 the ceiling on Regulars, with the additional appointments to be made from among officers now on active duty within a year's time after authorization from Congress.

There are reports from other sources that a long-range integration program now under consideration would set a goal of about 50,000 Regular officers for the Air Force.

During Army testimony Representative Edward T. Miller (R-Md) a Reservist for 38 years, asserted that it is "quite unhealthy" for the Army to have only 23 per cent of its officer corps in Regular status.

Maj. Gen. Robert N. Young, USA, Assistant Chief of Staff G-1, explained that current law restricts the Army to 30,600 Regulars and that there are close to 29,000 on active duty.

General Young reported that study is being given to a possible increase up to 55,000 Regular Army officers.

Subsequent to his testimony, made some weeks ago, it is learned that latest planning has centered on an Army figure of about 49,000.

Representative Miller urged that legislation be sent to Congress expanding the Regular strength of all the Services, considerably beyond the 4060 increase previously proposed for the Army in pending legislation.

Navy Secretary Charles S. Thomas, also questioned by Mr. Miller on this subject, told the Appropriations group that the Navy officer strength includes 43 per cent Reserves while 38 per cent of Marine Corps officers are Reservists.

Admiral Robert B. Carney, USN, Chief of Naval Operations, and General Lemuel C. Shepherd, Jr., USMC, Commandant of the Marine Corps, indicated that these services would continue to go easy on the intake of Regular officers.

mand Vice CofS, commander of the 82d Airborne and 2 Armored Divisions, and X Corps in Korea. He was G-4 before being made DEPLOY last September.

General Magruder, 55, was graduated from USMA in 1923. He filled key billets with Army Service Forces early in WW II, later served in North Africa and Europe, winding up as chief of staff and later Commanding General of Theater Service Forces in the ETO.

Like General Palmer an artilleryman, General Magruder in March 1946 became assistant chief of staff, G-4, of the U. S. Forces, Europe. In July 1947, he was appointed director of the Logistics Division of the European Command and became chief of staff of the U. S. Army in Europe the following May.

In February 1951, he became Deputy for Programs to the Assistant Chief of Staff for Logistics, Army.

In October 1953, General Magruder was transferred to the U. S. Army Forces Far East and was assigned to command the 24th Infantry Division in Korea. On 13 Jan. 1954, he assumed command of the standard of living of his surviving dependents, loss of educational opportunities for his children and other hardships."

Maj. Gen. Donald P. Booth, USA, Deputy G-1, obviously presenting the sentiments of all the Services on the matter of Social Security coverage, declared:

"Most people do not accept with pleasure a reduction in their take-home pay. There is also an understandable tendency for the personnel now in service to disapprove withdrawal of any part of the pay they now enjoy."

"I think the contributory feature of this bill will be readily accepted by new personnel coming into the Army," General Booth continued, "and I feel that when the full import of Social Security is understood—and when it is recognized that the present free coverage was never intended to be continued permanently—the contributory feature of this bill will be gracefully accepted by those now in the Service."

Brig. Gen. Nels H. Nelson, USMC, G-1 and Marine Corps Manpower Coordinator, urging approval of new legislation, said that past laws "have pyramided to the point where there is much overlapping and maldistribution of benefits for survivors of Service members and former Service members."

"The present laws," said General Nelson, "should be replaced by a single comprehensive system of benefits, uniform and just in application to both the Regular and the Reservist, the active as well as the retired, and for the survivors of the past and those of the future."

General Nelson said the Pentagon plan seeks these objectives.

As reported in detail in last week's issue of THE JOURNAL, the House group, headed by Representative Porter Hardy (D-Va.), is exploring various plans for improving military Survivor Benefits.

The Defense Department presentation, in addition to providing for permanent contributory Social Security coverage instead of the present temporary legislation which expires 30 June, proposed that Survivor Benefits be based on an individual's pay and suggested that this be 20 per cent of gross pay. A table showed gross pay calculations for all ranks.

The Defense Department presentation said the $10,000 Veterans Administration indemnity, now paid at the rate of $92.90 for 10 years, should be changed to a payment of $50 a month to a widow.

Instead of a death gratuity of six months' base pay, the Pentagon proposed four months of gross pay.

The Hardy Committee is expected to come forth with a formal legislative proposal within a month.

House Group Reports Modified Reserve Bill

The House Armed Services Committee has reported an amended version of the Defense Department's plan for building up the Reserve forces. The Committee favored the measure by a vote of 31-5 and Chairman Vinson expects to get it to the House floor next week, where, he says, it "certainly will be passed."

The Committee returned to the President the authority Congress took away from him in 1952—to call up a million reservists immediately in an emergency without awaiting for specific Congressional approval.

Knocked out of the bill, however, was the Department's plan to draft necessary numbers of young men for six months active military training to be followed by 7½ years in reserve units. But the Committee voted to permit the drafting for two years active duty of such 6-month trainees who fail to keep up their subsequent reserve obligations.

President and Defense Department At Odds On Document Giving Detailed Defense Data

A document which a Defense Department Assistant Secretary said on 26 April "should be reassuring to the American people," was described the next day by President Eisenhower as a "blunder."

The disagreement pointed up the current confused situation regarding release of defense information.

It came concurrently with the appointment of I. Karl Honaman, who has been Director of the Office of Strategic Information at the Commerce Department, to be Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense for Public Affairs under Assistant Defense Secretary Robert T. Ross.

It was Mr. Ross who on 26 April addressed a letter to Chairman Carl Vinson (D-Ga.) of the House Armed Services Committee commenting on information contained in a 32-page summary of defense data compiled by the Republican Senate Policy Committee.

A story by Mr. John Giles in the 23 April issue of the Washington, D. C., Star alleged that the Policy Committee's document contained 12 security violations.

Mr. Ross' Letter

Here is what Mr. Ross told Mr. Vinson: "Dear Mr. Vinson:

"Reference is made to the memorandum from Special Counsel John J. Courtney to Colonel Wade M. Fleischer, Director of Legislative Liaison, dated April 25, 1955, concerning an article published in the WASHINGTON EVENING STAR on April 23 relative to the pamphlet 'National Defense under the Republican Administration—Today and Tomorrow.'"

"As the document contains no significant technical information about new weapons, the compilation of the material is not considered a breach of security."

"The Chief Security Review Officer, Department of Defense, has reported to me that a security review of the material has been completed, and reveals only three minor technical items associated with projects which had not heretofore been cleared for open publication or general dissemination. The mention, however, of the names of these projects does not in itself constitute any revelation of information which would be of aid to a potential enemy, nor does it amount to a security violation."

"Most of the factual information contained in the pamphlet was taken from unclassified documents furnished the Senate Republican Policy Committee by, and cleared for publication by, the Department of Defense. In addition, the three items referred to in the preceding paragraph have been subjects of speculative writing and published in technical magazines."

"The 'security violations' information in the STAR article is not correct and was obviously obtained from some unauthorized and as yet unidentified source before the review of the document had been completed."

"In fact, as a whole, this document presents many of the positive accomplishments and goals of the Department of Defense, and should be reassuring to the American people."

/s/ ROBERT TRIPP ROSS
ASSISTANT SECRETARY OF DEFENSE

Asked at a 27 April news conference if he were "entirely relaxed" about publication of the pamphlet on Capitol Hill, President Eisenhower responded:

"I heard about this pamphlet just before I came over (to the news conference). They gave me some idea that made me think that there had been a blunder that occurred."

The Chief Executive said it was his understanding the pamphlet "gave out information that I wouldn't have given out, at least."

The Defense Department's attitude towards release of information again this week commanded most attention at Secretary Charles E. Wilson's news conference.

He opened this session on 26 April by reading a prepared statement which told of Mr. Honaman's appointment to succeed Mr. Walter Swan, who is returning to his civilian employment with United Airlines, and said that under Mr. Honaman there will be three branches—information, security review and special activities.

Then, the Secretary added to newsmen: "It is our confident hope that this will make it possible to operate constructively from your standpoint as well as ours. Some have the impression that we have resolved arbitrarily to restrict the flow of information. Nothing could be further from the truth. We want to make it clear that in handling information we should not inadvertently give our enemies advantages which they do not already have. On the positive side is the necessity to recognize that proper information is not withheld. It is the responsibility of all of us to exercise balanced judgment, case by case, to be sure people have the information they need and at the same time not compromise the national security."

Mr. Wilson and Mr. Honaman told how it is the aim of the new Defense Department public information directives to withhold from the enemy technical information concerning new weapons and developments, even though in some instances this information is not in a "classified" status.

The problem that this will pose to newsmen is pointed up in a newly released Air Force order implementing the Defense Department directive, and published in full on page 1032.

The Air Force communication said, in part:

"The release of operational or technical information on one specific military weapon or new type of military equipment is often in itself, harmless. However, the collection of many such items into one manuscript can result in a document which presents a complete picture of our technical advances or operational capabilities in some particular military field. As such the document may require classification."

Newsmen questioned Mr. Wilson and his associates whether the Republican Policy Committee report wasn't exactly the kind of compilation to which there was objection.

Mr. Ross, as evidenced in his letter to Mr. Vinson, though no.

The President disagreed.

Urge Super Agencies For Food & Clothing

a uniform ration for all services and set up master menus, and that the clothing agency standardize the allowance for clothing and "standardize clothing to the extent practicable."

Each agency should establish a systematic training plan for its service. In addition the personnel administering each of the activities should "be properly qualified or trained for such service; and that the military personnel be required to serve continuously over considerable periods and be given rank and promotion comparable to that in the combat military services."

On the matter of a standardized ration, the Commission was quite concerned that the Army allows more than twice as many eggs as the Navy while the Navy allows about 50 per cent more potatoes than the Army—"Neither is it understood why the Navy includes twice the amount of canned tomatoes as the Army."

"The task force," the Commission said, "after examination in the field, was of the unanimous opinion that the Army ration and method should be applied to the Navy and Marine Corps. It held that the master menus should be mandatory, if proper procurement, storage and service at the mess level were to be had. It commends the service of the Quartermaster General of the Army for having better controls than the Navy."

The task force report was replete with the usual charges of "great waste, duplication, overlapping and an unnecessary number of agencies." It cited numerous instances of alleged overstocking, such as charges that the Navy has enough canned hamburger to last for 719 months. These charges of overstocking were based on current rates of consumption and did not take into consideration the need for reserve stocks to take up the initial shock of expanded forces in wartime.

The report recommended that food and clothing be purchased by "notice of intent to purchase and negotiated contract," but three of the Commissioners filed dissents to this and urged that competitive bidding be retained.

New Concept Of Military Mobility Seen; Mass Troop Moves By Vertical Take-Off

Revolutionary changes in military mobility with mass movements of troops by vertical take-off, high-speed transports, were forecast this week by Stanley Hiller, jr., helicopter manufacturer and builder of the Navy's research "Flying Platform."

Mr. Hiller, who is president of Hiller Helicopters of Palo Alto, Calif., and chairman of the Helicopter Council of the Aircraft Industries' Association, told the Aero Club of Washington that developments are underway which will be far ahead of the current VTO fighters and flying "bedsteads."

"I am sure," Mr. Hiller said, "that none of the group here today will be too surprised when they open their paper in the not too distant future and read of the establishment by one of the largest aircraft manufacturers of an anti-gravitational division. * * * Don't scoff at anti-gravitational devices because in this industry, the well-worn comment that anything man can think of, man can do, has proved to be an historically true statement."

Discussing the "new revolution in air transportation," Mr. Hiller said:

"First, it will be seen in the adoption of an entirely new concept of military mobility. The Army particularly is profiting from these new design trends. As one high-ranking general recently put it, 'The old ground-bound thinking is on its way out.' Yes, by 1965 we will see the equivalent of flying jeeps, staff cars and air ambulances in much greater quantity than those comparatively few in-service military helicopters of today. It is not inconceivable that mass movements of troops, here again particularly by the Army, Navy and Marine Corps, in vertical take-off, high speed transports will become a common medium of military transportation during the late 1960's and early 1970's.

"As to the direct effect of our personal transportation media, this vast movement to air mobility by the military will exert a profound force on development of specialized civilian vehicles. No longer will the great restraining effect of large air terminal requirements prohibit the potential wide use of the broad air road. You should see during the latter portion of the 1960's, vertical take-off transports which at cruising speed will easily out-distance the newest transports flying today, such as the DC-7 and the Super Constellations.

"Actually, the aircraft which we now have under study or in preliminary engineering phases, surprisingly enough, aren't as unconventional looking as you might anticipate, yet no mile-long runways are required for airborne operations.

"At the other end of the slide rule, small-sized aircraft developed from the experimental rotorless helicopters of today may make many take a second look for invisible strings which seem to lend their support. Don't expect too much too soon because whatever is developed is dependent upon the trends of military procurement.

"Conversely, may I conclude with this admonition . . . don't let your imagination limit you to discarding the possibility of 'winged feet'."

BOARD WILL CONSIDER 600-700 LT. COLS.

The Army will convene a selection board at the Pentagon on 17 May to consider between 600 and 700 lieutenant colonels for temporary promotion to colonel on a "best qualified" basis.

Eligibles must have active duty date of rank as lieutenant colonel as of 30 June 1945 for the Army Promotion List, and 30 April 1949 for the Chaplains List.

There will be no selections on the MC, DC, VC and MSC lists.

The new zone of consideration for the Army Promotion List is a six months extension of the previous zone, although the 10 years in rank criterion is the same.

The Army said a circular will be issued shortly listing all those eligible for consideration.

WHAT'S AF WORTH? $75 BILLION IS ESTIMATE

The Air Force thinks its assets will be worth about $75 billion when it completes its Monetary Inventory Accounting in the Spring of 1956.

The House Appropriations Committee was told that use of the new system during the past two years has progressed to a point where $25,181,000,000 is tabulated, including $11.4 billion worth of aircraft.

The Air Force estimates it has $1.8 billion in inventories in Army depots. Not yet included in the total are undelivered stocks in hands of contractors, stocks in transit or on order, or fixed assets such as land and buildings.

Army Will Boost Airlift Transport

The Army has disclosed plans to start Operation Gyroscope with the airlift of the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team from Ft. Campbell, Ky., and the shift by air of its sister unit, the 187th ARCT to Ft. Bragg, N. C.

There has been considerable discussion during recent months of the possible expanded use by the Army of air transportation for the movement of troops to and from overseas stations.

The airborne units will move about 1 July.

The rotation movement will be supported by C-124 Globemaster Troop Carriers from Tactical Air Command's 18th Air Force in the 12,000 mile round trip airlift over the Pacific.

As personnel of the two combat units are taking part in a tactical move, dependents' families authorized concurrent travel will be transported by the Military Sea Transportation Service.

The plan to airlift the units is designed to test the effectiveness of procedures governing the tactical air movement of combat units to and from overseas stations. Study and evaluation of the movement will be used in future planning for movement of combat units, the Army said.

Col. Hillman Appointed

Col. Burleigh F. Hillman, USA, X Corps Comptroller, will succeed Brig. Gen. Robert Q. Brown, USA, as X Corps Chief of Staff at Ft. Riley, Kans. General Brown has been assigned to Maxwell AFB, Ala., where he will serve as Chief of the Army Advisory Group at the Air University.

it's too late, now!

Yes, he waited a little too long to join the Armed Forces Medical Aid Association. Now dependents' hospital bills, surgery fees, medication charges — are stacking up. They would have all been covered in a policy secured through AFMAA.

AFMAA is a non-profit, all-serviceman organization set up to get health insurance for your dependents. Membership costs only $5.50 a month for wife only, $8.00 with kids. Write today for info—while you've still got time.

How To Promote? Army Seeks Reaction

What is the best way to make enlisted promotions?

The Army has directed researchers from the Human Resources Office (HUMRO) to find out the reaction of men in the field.

Surveys are being made to find out whether soldiers think promotion should be by board, by authority of commanders, or by examination.

At the same time, the Pentagon is asking Army commanders to make recommendations concerning the current surplus in E-7 rank, which is barring promotions to top NCO status.

Army EM Promotion Face Slump In '56

Army enlisted promotions for FY '56 will fall to 691,400 from a total of 1,120,300 in the fiscal year ending on 30 June, newly released Congressional testimony discloses.

At this time, the Army forecasts no promotions to E-7 rank. There have been none to this grade for more than a year.

Promotions estimated for the year beginning 1 July are listed herewith, with the '55 comparative figure in parentheses:

E-6—10,600 (14,078)
E-5—54,400 (86,007)
E-4—177,900 (322,908)
E-3—228,600 (368,166)
E-2—219,900 (328,925)

Total enlisted strength of the Army will drop during the next fiscal year from 979,800 to 911,600.

SGT. KRILLING TOPS

M/Sgt. W. E. Krilling of The Engineer Center Rifle Team at Ft. Belvoir, Va., has won the Virginia State Rifle and Revolver Association's High Power Trophy.

Sergeant Krilling, who was awarded the DSC as a First Sergeant in Korea, fired a 238 out of a possible 250 points.

Also at the meet on 16 April were Olympic Champions Allan L. Luke and Art Jackson. They were unsuccessful in attempts to outscore the sergeant. He shot a perfect score from the 200 yard line and enough 4s and 5s from the 300 and 500 yard lines to "edge out" his opponents.

Eight Basic Training Bns. Discontinued At Bliss

In line with plans to end basic infantry training at Ft. Bliss, Tex., eight basic training battalions in the Antiaircraft Artillery Replacement Training Center will be discontinued by the end of May.

The reorganization of the AAA RTC is part of the Army's overall program to centralize training facilities for the soldiers' first eight weeks. This program will result, it is hoped, in a saving in training overhead.

Hammock, USN, Commanding Officer Bremerhaven Military Sea Transportation Service when the General visited Bremerhaven, Germany, recently. It was General McAuliffe's first visit to the Port since he assumed the USAREUR command. Pictured with the General are left to right: Captain Hammock, Col. Frank T. Shift Gen. Ginder, Name Gen. Martin

Maj. Gen. Philip DeW. Ginder, USA, commander of the 10th Infantry Division, scheduled to leave Ft. Riley, Kans., beginning in July for Operation Gyroscope transfer with the 1st Infantry Division in Germany, has received a new assignment.

He will report in mid-May to the Fifth Army with station at Camp McCoy, Wisc., where he is expected to supervise Reserve training.

New division commander is expected to be Brig. Gen. George E. Martin, USA, who has been assistant commander of the 10th since January 1954 and who has been named for two-star rank.

Both generals are USMA '27 graduates. General Ginder has been in command of the 10th and its predecessor, the 37th Infantry Division, since December 1953.

The Army has named Brig. Gen. Charles E. Beauchamp, USA, now deputy commandant of the Command and General Staff College, Ft. Leavenworth, Kans., to report to the 10th in June, presumably to be assistant commander.

CNO Says New Big Carriers Need 70-100 Support Ships; Planes Costing $365 Million

The Navy's first five supercarriers will require a force of 70-100 ships for support and will be equipped with planes costing $365 million.

Admiral Robert B. Carney, USN, Chief of Naval Operations, has revealed that each of the big vessels will carry aircraft costing approximately $73 million, and will be supported by two cruisers and "a circle of destroyers" numbering from 12-18 "for antisubmarine and anti-aircraft protection."

The CNO's comments on the controversial flattops were released by a House Appropriations Subcommittee following House approval late last week of the Navy's $1.3 billion shipbuilding program the coming fiscal year.

Included in the planned construction is the fifth Forrestal-class carrier, to be named USS Kitty Hawk. The vessel is expected to cost almost $200 million, $1,326,000 more than the USS Forrestal, first of the supercarriers due to be commissioned this year.

Under the original terms of the shipbuilding bill, sponsored by Chairman Carl Vinson (D-Ga) of the House Armed Services Committee, the fifth carrier was to be named USS Congress. The switch in names came during floor debate when the House accepted an amendment offered by Representative Carl T. Durham (D-NC).

The shipbuilding program, providing $275 million more than was appropriated for fiscal '55, permits construction of 24 new warships and conversion of 28 other vessels (see THE JOURNAL, 5 March, for complete list of ships). Funds for construction still remain to be appropriated, and sharp opposition to additional supercarriers was voiced by some members during the House debate.

Testimony released by the Appropriations Subcommittee shows that cost of all five supercarriers will total almost one billion dollars ($973,041,000). Here is a run-down (in round numbers) on the estimated cost of the vessels in millions: Forrestal—$198; Saratoga—$207; Ranger—$180; Independence—$189; Kitty Hawk—$199.

The first of the 60,500-ton flattops will join the fleet next spring, Admiral Carney said. "She will be commissioned this calendar year in the late fall or early winter, and she will have her shakedown and the usual wearing-in or working-in process before she actually joins as an operating member of the fleet." He said he thinks the Forrestal will join the fleet before 30 June 1956.

"TOUGHEST SHIPS" ARE ABANDONED

The day of the battleship is almost over.

When the Navy's present superdreadnaughts have outlived their usefulness, no more will be constructed.

Navy Secretary Charles S. Thomas has told a Congressional Committee that the Navy "definitely" does not plan to build any more of the big vessels.

Admiral Robert B. Carney, Chief of Naval Operations, defended the mighty floating fortresses. He said, "They are the toughest ships that have ever been built."

USMC Revises Rules For Shoot Entrants

The Marine Corps has revised eligibility regulations for participation in rifle and pistol matches sponsored by the National Board for the Promotion of Rifle Practice and the National Rifle Association.

After 1 July, Marine Corps posts and activities will be permitted to enter at Government expense up to 12 competitors in any NBPRP or NRA tournament. In addition, requests for authority for participation will not be required from Headquarters. Expenses of team members may be defrayed by appropriated funds regardless of the NRA classifications of personnel concerned.

All costs of travel, per diem, and registration and entry fees will be borne by the command issuing the orders.

Navy-Marine Corps Fighting Ratio Drops; New Four-Year Low Slated For Navy

The ratio of fighting men in the Navy and Marine Corps is on a downhill trend and will hit a new four-year low in the Navy next year.

This disclosure was made in testimony released by a House Appropriations Subcommittee.

Navy statistics show that 59.52 per cent of all Naval personnel were assigned to the operating forces in mid-1953. This ratio had climbed to 62.71 per cent by the end of June 1954, but will drop to 60.09 per cent by the middle of this year and to a new low of 59.40 per cent on 30 June 1956.

The Navy will have approximately

NAVY UNDER SECRETARY THOMAS S. GATES, JR., and his host, Maj. Gen. Alfred H. Noble, USMC, commanding general of Camp Lejeune, N. C., in a Marine Corps Group 26 helicopter ready to take off for an aerial inspection tour of the camp.

390,000 men in the operating forces by mid-1956, as compared with 469,185 on 30 June 1953.

The Marine Corps fares a little better under the new manpower ceilings.

Marine statistics show that 65.6 per cent of all Marine Corps personnel will be assigned to the operating forces on 30 June of this year. This ratio, which was lower in fiscal '53 and '54, will drop to 61.1 per cent by mid-1956.

In 1953, the Marines had 147,773 men in their operating forces. This will drop to 134,389 under the new strength goals in the current fiscal year, and to 118,865 by 30 June 1956.

SARATOGA SPONSOR

Mrs. Charles S. Thomas, wife of the Secretary of the Navy, will sponsor the USS Saratoga, the second of the 60,000-ton Forrestal class aircraft carriers.

The vessel is tentatively scheduled to be launched in late October.

Boards Consider 6,000 Marines for Promotion

Four selection boards and a Naval Examining Board will consider more than 6000 Marine Corps Reserve officers for promotion.

The Naval Examining Board will consider approximately 2400 second lieutenants. Selection boards will consider approximately 1000 first lieutenants, 2000 captains, 600 majors, and 15 lieutenant colonels for promotion to the next higher grade.

The captain and major boards are currently in session. The colonel and lieutenant colonel boards will convene 2 May. Women Reserve officers will be considered for promotion on 5 May.

Reserve officers in an active status whose Regular running mates were considered for promotion by preceding selection boards are eligible for consideration. Reserve officers who have been considered by active boards are not eligible.

A board will convene in the near future to consider Reserve warrant officers for advancement in grade.

Choose 1800 Prospects For Campus Training

State Selection Committees have picked 1,800 candidates and 719 alternates for the Navy sponsored NROTC program.

They were chosen from 22,000 high school seniors and graduates who applied for the program last Fall and took Naval College Aptitude Tests in December.

Quotas were apportioned among the states on a percentage basis of male high school graduates in each state during 1953-54. Committees, composed of an educator, a prominent businessman, and a Navy captain or Marine Corps colonel, picked those considered best qualified.

Who Holds Responsibility To Congress? AF Housing Crisis Points The Problem

Ever since the Defense Department was reorganized in 1953, there has been much discussion about the relative responsibilities of the Service Secretaries and the nine Assistant Defense Secretary "vice presidents."

Insofar as operations are concerned, Reorganization Plan No. 6 provided that the Secretaries were to run their departments—Army, Navy, and Air Force—with the Assistant Secretaries laying down policies and aiding the Secretaries to get their job done.

In the past two years, there have been numerous charges that the non-operating Assistant Secretaries are, in fact, involved in day-to-day management matters. Certainly this has been true for the Assistant Secretary Legislative and Public Affairs.

A new light was thrown on the problem during recent testimony, now made public, by Air Force Secretary Harold E. Talbott concerning the deplorable housing situation overseas, particularly in France.

Specifically, Mr. Talbott told how the Air Force had sought for a long time to gain authority from Assistant Defense Secretary, Installations and Properties, Franklin G. Floete for a seven-year mortgage guarantee to French builders, instead of five years.

The Air Force Secretary described how his Service cannot act without O.K. from Mr. Floete's office in the matter of housing.

"We really are in the position of claimants justifying not only the housing need but the economics of the housing deal involved and the other factors to secure that approval," Air Force Under Secretary James H. Douglas said. "It may be a very wise thing, but it is often the situation that we find ourselves in disagreement with the Secretary of Defense's office."

Then, although the discussion concerned housing, forthright Secretary Talbott remarked:

"If we want to extend a runway, Mr. Deane, it goes to Mr. Floete's office, and Mr. Floete's report comes back to us and the request is denied."

Asked Representative Charles B. Deane (D-N.C.):

"What technical knowledge does he have in his office that would give him that information that it is not necessary?"

Secretary Talbott: "I think that is the same kind of information that I would have in my office. It is a difference of opinion. That is his opinion."

Returning to the discussion of the housing shortage, Representative Deane remarked:

"It would seem to me that if we choose highly respected generals in whom we have confidence that some authority could be delegated to them. I do not believe they would have made recommendations to increase the rental-guaranteed period unless they felt it was sound."

Mr. Deane said the Air Force is now forced to buy trailers because of the DoD delay in extending the guarantee period.

Running through the testimony as an undercurrent was the fact that Mr. Talbott, as head of the Air Force, has a specific responsibility to Congressional committees to account for his management of such matters as housing, whereas the accountability of the Assistant Defense Secretaries is not as specific.

The recent Defense Department directive on public information policies "does not intend to curtail flow of legitimate information and disrupt normal public relations activities," the Air Force has advised field commands.

A dispatch sent from Washington said the objective "is to prevent excess flow of technical information which could be detrimental to the security of the United States."

The official message continues as follows after the initial paragraph.

2. The release of operational or technical information on one specific military weapon or new type of military equipment is often, in itself, harmless. However, the collection of many such items into one manuscript can result in a document which presents a complete picture of our technical advances or operational capabilities in some particular military field. As such the document may require classification.

3. a. In the interest of preserving military security, propriety and consistency, certain precautions will be followed when releasing information on subjects outlined below:

- (1) Military Policy
- (2) Nuclear Weapons
- (3) Guided Missiles (their existence, characteristics, or capabilities)
- (4) Techniques resulting in improved military performance, release of which may endanger national security.

b. Information planned for release covering subjects a (1) thru (4) above should stand test of following questions:

- (1) Does the material contain information of national significance which would require release at seat of government?
- (2) Can this information be expected to aid a potential enemy in his intelligence operations?
- (3) Will the value to a potential enemy offset any beneficial effects?

c. If answer to b(1) thru (3) above is "YES" or "QUESTIONABLE," the material either should not be released, or should be submitted to the Office of Information Services, SAIS, for review and clearance.

d. In addition, information concerning new weapons and new equipment; and modifications of weapons and equipment; biological, radiological, and chemical weapons which has not previously been officially released will be submitted to the Office of Information Services for clearance.

e. Prior publication by news media of information on subjects listed in paragraph 3a above does not necessarily authorize release. Care must be exercised to determine whether information has been "previously officially released by the Department of Defense or the United States Air Force."

f. Information of local or regional interest, including speeches and interviews, shall be cleared for release by local commands or their designated representative, providing the information is unclassified. Unclassified news of national significance, where time is of essence (spot news) may also be cleared locally. Full and interim reports will be forwarded to the Office of Information Services by expeditious means.

g. Speech material based upon official Department of Defense and the United States Air Force fact sheets, news releases and officially published speeches need not be submitted to the Office of Information Services for clearance unless doubt exists as to current policy.

4. The following procedures will govern:

- a. Initial Release. When under the terms of this message clearance by this Headquarters is required, on news releases, photographs or feature materials, etc., three (3) copies of such releases or material will be forwarded to the Office of Information Services.

- b. Timing. Submissions will be timed to allow five (5) working days at this Headquarters. Lengthy or involved materials will require additional time. In any event care will be exercised to allow sufficient time, prior to proposed release date, for adequate review.

- c. Action. Commanders will establish procedures to insure conformity with these instructions. Wide dissemination of this message is required.

5. An Air Force Regulation on this subject will be published in near future. Any directives which are in conflict with these instructions will be revised accordingly.

AF Provides Furnished Quarters In Alaska, C. Z.

Air Force personnel stationed in Alaska and the Panama Canal Zone after 1 June will be provided basic household furnishings in government quarters.

The new order is expected to eliminate costly and often damaging shipment of personal furniture to these areas. Individual shipping allowance of 2,000 pounds will be allowed for personal belongings and optional items of furniture desired by the individual. Hold baggage will not be included in the weight limit.

Household goods not required or needed in these areas will be stored by the Air Force. Individuals will know prior to leaving their duty stations in this country what essential and optional items should be shipped under the weight allowance as well as items not required.

The new order does not affect personnel already on orders for assignment to Alaska or the Panama Canal Zone. Members already occupying quarters in these areas or assigned there prior to 1 June will be permitted to return their furnishings under the authorized weight allowance.

Col. Guy Rockey Heads Wiesbaden Command

Colonel Guy H. Rockey, USAF, has assumed command of the 7100th Support Wing, USAF, and the Wiesbaden Area Command. He succeeds Col. Myles W. Brewster, USAF, reassigned to the Third Air Force for subsequent retirement in England.

Col. Rockey

Prior to arrival in Germany last year, Colonel Rockey commanded a Special Weapons Operational Suitability Test unit in Albuquerque, N. Mex.

Colonel and Mrs. Rockey, the former Evelyn H. Lange of New Orleans, La., and their four children, Gayle, 15, Guy H. III, 14, Lon, 13 and Lyn, 8, reside in Wiesbaden.

U. S. Air Logistics Fleet Obsolete, Says Engineer

America's present air logistics transport fleet would be obsolete in the event of a military emergency, Mr. W. R. Rhoads, chief military operations research engineer for Lockheed Aircraft Corporation's Marietta, Ga., aircraft plant, told the Golden Anniversary aeronautic meeting of the Society of Automotive Engineers in New York.

His opinion coincides with views coming from a meeting in Washington last December under the auspices of the Air Force Association, when airlines and aircraft manufacturers' representatives met with spokesmen for the military to discuss "the need for a new air logistic transport system to support our military combat units on a global basis."

"Our ability to meet this requirement (for global air mobility) may well be the determining factor in our chances for continued survival as a free nation," Mr. Rhoads said.

Mr. Rhoads is engaged in the relatively new science of military operations research. Purpose of this new science is to "look down the road towards the weapons systems of the future." Lockheed's research scientists in this field at the Marietta plant include people of widely divergent backgrounds—mathematicians, physicists, economists, chemists, etc.

"In the time remaining to us by the atomic clock, we must provide our fighting forces (and those of the friendly nations) with mobility on a global scale, regardless of cost," Mr. Rhoads asserted.

He advocated "a whole new family of aircraft" to give the free world nations "large fleets of common-purpose transports."

"Time is running out," he concluded. "Within the next ten years we must:

- "1. Increase the capacity of our air cargo fleet four or five times.
- "2. Reduce the cost of carrying air cargo.
- "3. Reconcile the differences between military and civil (operational) requirements for cargo aircraft.
- "4. Completely integrate the cargo aircraft into the over-all air logistic transport system.
- "5. Evolve procedures whereby cargo aircraft fleets may be operated alternately by the military or the commercial airlines, as the military situation dictates."

Rental vs. Government Quarters. Senator Harry F. Byrd (D-Va) reported this week that investigations made by the General Accounting Office have revealed "windfall" profits by some builders of Wherry Housing at military installations with resultant unnecessarily high rentals for Service families occupying such quarters.

Senator Byrd, whose interest stems from his chairmanship of the Joint Committee on Reduction of Non-essential Federal Expenditures, revealed instances where preliminary estimates on local taxes turned out to be much higher than the subsequent actual taxes resulting in higher rents for the Service tenants and higher profits for the builders. Another case cited a guaranteed mortgage $18,458 higher than the actual cost of building a 130-unit project. Charges were also made that the FHA authorized rent increases in conflict with its own regulations and policy.

It should be emphasized that the investigation covered only four Wherry Act projects; it should not be taken as an indictment of the entire program. In fact, such construction was for a long time the only means of providing Service housing during the period when Government construction virtually ceased. However, even at its best it failed to provide junior commissioned or non-commissioned officers with family housing at rates commensurate with their quarters allowances.

The revelations should serve to emphasize the need for proceeding rapidly with government housing to be occupied in lieu of quarters allowances—housing which families can occupy within their means and which will be economical to the government. The government profits from building its own quarters, for it withholds the rental allowances of those occupying them. Thus after the construction cost has been repaid the withheld allowances constitute a clear gain for the government. In the Wherry Act housing, on the other hand, the builder's cost is amortized over a period of 33 years. While the government takes title upon construction, it at the same time leases the property back to the builder for a period varying from 50 to 75 years (assuming the structures last that long), so that the government continues to pay out quarters allowances for 50 to 75 years while the occupants, in most instances, pay out more than their allowances in rentals.

Senator Byrd has asked the Senate Armed Services Committee to investigate the military aspects of the Wherry program and indications are that this may be done. Such an investigation, however, would be meaningless unless it results in reduction of rentals where overcharging is revealed.

USAF's New Four-Star. President Eisenhower's nomination this week of Lt. Gen. Laurence S. Kuter, USAF, to be a four-star general brings to the fore a young officer—not yet 50—who has had an outstanding career since his graduation from West Point in 1927. After a short tour in the Field Artillery, General Kuter was detailed in the Air Corps, graduating from Kelly Field's advanced course in 1930. Since then he has performed with distinction in many and varied Air Force positions.

When the pre-WWII military build-up began, he was one of the very few Air Corps officers qualified for staff duty. After a tour in the Operations and Training Division of the War Department General Staff, he was appointed Assistant Secretary of the War Department General Staff, and when the Department was reorganized he became Deputy Chief of Air Staff. After serving in the Tunisian campaign as deputy commander of the Northwest African Tactical Air

SATURDAY, 30 APRIL 1955

Force, General Kuter returned to Washington as Assistant Chief of Air Staff for Plans, participating in the Joint Chiefs of Staff organization and with the Combined Chiefs of Staff at Quebec, Cairo, London, Malta, and Yalta. Back to combat duty, he went to the Marianas as deputy commander of the Air Force in the Pacific Ocean Areas and helped to organize the Strategic Air Forces in the Pacific.

After the War General Kuter was designated to consolidate and put on a peacetime basis several of the Air Transport Command's larger wartime divisions in the North and South Atlantic, the Caribbean and South America and was given command of the resultant Atlantic Division. Subsequently he returned to become the first commander of the new Military Air Transport Service—the first joint command under the new Department of Defense.

As Commander of the Air University he returned to Maxwell AFB, Ala., where he graduated from the old Air Corps Tactical School in 1935 and served subsequently as an instructor of bombardment, aviation, and the employment of air forces.

In his new assignment as Commander-in-Chief Far East Air Force, he succeeds General Earle E.

READERS' VIEWS

(Letters to the Editor must have author's name and address, but name will be omitted on publication if writer so states. Longer letters may be extracted for publication.)

"Best Qualified" Among Whom?

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

It was with great interest that I read the article, "Chance To Be Considered," by Lt. Col. G. S., in your 5 March issue. I, too, am a permanent R.A. Lt. Col. with a temporary date of rank of 7 Sept. 1950.

I also found myself at the wrong places at promotion time during World War II: mainly in an infantry division in a forward combat area from 1942 to 1944. We had extra field grade officers in my regiment practically all the time. These majors and Lt. Cols. had been promoted in the States, in the cadre chain reaction, and shipped over to our outfit where they waited for one of our Battalion Commanders or Executive Officers to become casualties so they could be assigned to TO&E position vacancies. Meanwhile the company commanders had no chance whatever to occupy a position vacancy and become eligible for promotion.

Now I also face the same situation again; I am unable to become eligible for consideration. The current regulations state that all selections, both temporary and permanent, from Lt. Col. to Col. will be made on a "best qualified" basis. How can this be possible when all Lt. Cols. are not considered? The same zone of consideration was used by the last selection board as was used by the preceding board. From this it is evident that the last board considered only those that the preceding board passed over. Meanwhile, hundreds of Lt. Cols. have never been considered for temporary promotion to Col.; and, under the present criteria, will not be in the foreseeable future.

I would be very happy to have my record placed before a promotion board, in competition with all Lt. Cols., to be considered on a "best qualified" basis.

Under the present personnel policies an early retirement, at my request, and civilian employment, is more enticing each day.

LT. COL., R.A.

Reports for Publicity

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

Hoover Commission Reports used to be considered in high regard by even those cynical staff officers like myself who work in between waste paper baskets in the inner rings of the Pentagon—second floor. More often than not they used to really put their finger on a problem, and they were correct. . . . I say they used to . . . because they are currently publishing data and statements which, in private business, might well be considered as libelous.

Facts have been distorted and taken out of context—clearly with publicity in mind and not the research job which they are supposed to perform.

I wonder just how familiar our ex-president Mr. Herbert Hoover is with these proceedings which bear his name?

LT. COL., USAF

Partridge, USAF, a WWI Army private who later graduated from the U. S. Military Academy. General Partridge, a veteran of more than 70 air missions in Korea, now goes to Ent AFB, Colo., to take over from retiring General Benjamin W. Chidlaw, USAF, the only joint US combat organization—Continental Air Defense Command.

Defense of the Services. Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson has done well to refute charges against the Armed Services being made weekly by the Hoover Commission. In fact, if he fails to counter them effectively, they can do much harm to the career incentive program on which the Defense Department has been working so hard. While the Department is seeking to boost Service prestige and morale, the Commission has been knocking them down. While the Department wants to give better medical care to Service families, the Commission wants to take away its doctors and eliminate free family care in the U. S. While the Department has obtained an increase in pay so Service families can live better, the Commission wants to reduce the travel allowances and restrict shipment of household goods. Militarily, the Commission wants to cut down Service operation and training in air transportation at a time when there is general recognition that air logistics must be increased three to five fold.

Secretary Wilson should appoint a Service committee to study the Commission's reports and suggest action on those recommendations that may have merit from a military standpoint and to deny effectively charges such as Assistant Secretary Pike branded this week as "old, not factual, and misleading."

IN THE JOURNAL

10 Years Ago—The XXIV Army Corps continued the attack against enemy lines in the southern sector of Okinawa on 23 April. Elements of the 7th Infantry Division captured an important enemy position on high ground west of Ishin Village. Enemy opposition was heavy along the entire front.

50 Years Ago—About 40 Army commissions are awaiting the return of the President to Washington, the Secretary of War having directed that no Army commissions be sent to him for his signature while he is off on his vacation.

90 Years Ago—The funeral car which carries to the grave all of the mortal part of Abraham Lincoln, is now on its mournful, but triumphant, journey through the chief cities of that land for which the Martyr-President died. Millions of his affectionate people have thronged, with heartfelt emotion, to pay the last tribute of respectful attendance at his obsequies, and, with a stillness and decorum almost unknown before such vast assemblages in our country, have testified the great love which the country bore to its Chief Magistrate.

Marines Need Aid On Housing Front; Bill On Substandard Quarters Would Help

CRITICAL housing shortages and excessive rentals for substandard quarters are a top Marine Corps morale problem, a nation-wide survey by The Journal discloses. Reports from key Marine Corps facilities, described herewith point up the need for legislation providing new government-built quarters and for approval of the Pentagon plan to charge reduced rentals for substandard quarters.

Some Fear To Report On Quantico Housing Lest They Lose Out On Available Quarters

"There is no question that housing conditions need improvement here," officials at the Marine Corps Schools, Quantico, Va., state.

In some cases, quarters are furnished with outside toilet facilities rather than standard plumbing.

Although the situation has improved over the past several years, Quantico officers say there are still many areas which should be declared off-limits.

Base housing officials, however, run into difficulties on this score. Every three months a survey is made of local living conditions; a standard form is distributed on which the men are supposed to report the inadequacies of their quarters.

Often, however, the men decline to make an official representation of the actual conditions, since they fear they will lose their places. It is their feeling that "as bad as it may be, it is better than no housing," a base housing expert relates.

In addition to the primary need for improved low-cost housing for enlisted Marines, there is also a critical demand for furnished units from young officers. At the present time, some officers are living in "primitive" housing.

While waiting periods for housing at the Marine Corps Schools are subject to seasonable variations, the majority of arriving personnel wait, on an average, from six months to a year.

During late Summer and Fall, when the longer professional schools convene, longer waiting periods for all quarters, including local-area civilian housing, are experienced. The peak waiting periods of influx and exodus exist until the Spring and early Summer, when students graduate and duty personnel receive transfer orders.

There are five types of housing and quarters available at Quantico. Schools officials, however, believe that Titles VIII and IX of the Housing Act do not provide a solution to the problem. It is felt that the real answer to the critical housing problem is more government-built three-bedroom places.

Here is a rundown on facilities at the Base:

CIVILIAN HOUSING

Local-area civilian rental housing is generally old, poorly designed, limited in size and restricted in modern conveniences and furnishings. Rentals are high—the average is from $100 per month up—for comparable Marine Corps Schools-controlled units. Three or more bedroom units are especially difficult to find.

As a result, some Schools personnel are forced to assume the added expense of living as far away as Washington, D. C., and Manassas and Fredericksburg, Va.

In general distances and travel-time to and from Marine Corps Schools main areas tend to be excessive. This is particularly true, during and following rain or snow storms, since the road network around the Base is inadequate.

Only one apartment-type project, immediately adjacent to the Schools, offers a choice of furnished and unfurnished units which can be considered modern in all respects and reasonable in price.

Some units are up for sale, but are generally inferior in construction, too expensive, and too small to meet the needs of Schools personnel.

Another problem in the Quantico area is the lack of an adequate water supply. Last Summer, for example, occupants of several, local projects, including rental units, were without water for extended periods of time. Sewage disposal and sanitation problems were acute.

The water shortage was not as critical on Base, it is reported, since it is easier to control military personnel than civilians. Nevertheless, it is an unhealthy situation, one officer said.

Many Quantico personnel, who live off-Base, report that the water supply around the area has a very strong and unpleasant chemical flavor.

WHERRY HOUSING (TITLE VIII)

A sample inquiry into four Virginia installations, including Quantico, has revealed a military housing "windfall," according to Sen. Harry F. Byrd (D-Va.).

The investigation of Wherry Housing was conducted by U. S. Comptroller General Joseph Campbell for the Senator's Joint Committee on Reduction of Non-essential Federal Expenditures.

In connection with the Quantico project, Comptroller Campbell reported to Senator Byrd that he had found that the operators of Thomason Park have twice declined to execute the required tax agreement form, and because of court rulings the company does not have to pay taxes. The report states that the operators have made $35,300 in extra profits from 1952 through 1954.

Thomason Park is a 450 unit, apartment-type project located on the Base. Units of the project are available to officers and Staff NCO's only. Rates for officers are: $70.50 for one bedroom; $87.50 for two bedrooms; and $100.50 for three bedrooms. Rates for NCO's are: $59.00 for one bedroom; $68.00 for two bedrooms; and $78.50 for three bedrooms. All units are unfurnished except for a stove and refrigerator.

TITLE IX (DEFENSE HOUSING)

Melrose Gardens is a 370 unit project, composed of both apartment-type and duplex units. It is located six miles from the Marine Corps Schools and is limited to officers and Staff NCO's. All rates are: $59.50 for one bedroom; $69.00 to $80.50 for two bedrooms—row, end or duplex; $90.50 for three bedrooms, all duplex. All utilities are extra and average $12.00 to $22.00 on a seasonable basis. All units are unfurnished except for a stove and refrigerator.

LOW COST HOUSING

There are two Navy Defense Rental Housing Projects for enlisted men in the four lower pay grades. Midway Island Dwellings, located about seven miles to the south of the Marine Corps Schools on the Base, consists of 250 duplex-type one, two and three bedroom units. Chamberlain Village, immediately adjacent to the main Schools area, consists of 100 duplex-type two bedroom units. Rentals are: $26.00 for one bedroom; $31.00 for two bedrooms at Midway Island Dwellings; $26.00 additional at Chamberlain Village; $36.00 for three bedrooms. All utilities are extra—ranging from $12.00 to $22.00 on a seasonable basis.

TITLE III (PHA TRAILERS)

Purvis Park is an 87-unit, furnished trailer project for enlisted men in the four lower pay grades. Four-sleeper trailers rent for $37.50 and six-sleeper trailers for $42.50. Heating and cooking utilities run about $5.00 per month.

In addition, there are 41 sites for enlisted men to park privately-owned trailers at Purvis Park. Parking spaces rent for $13.25 a month. Occupants pay for their own heating and cooking fuels.

TEMPORARY ACCOMMODATIONS

Officers may obtain accommodations by writing to the Officer-in-Charge, Commissioned Officers Mess (Open). Rates are: $2.00 per day for adults and $1.00 a day for children. These accommodations are not available for more than five consecutive days. The Hostess House accommodates all enlisted ranks, and officers when there are vacancies. Rates are: $1.00 to $1.50 a day for adults and $.50 for a child. These quarters may not be occupied for more than 10 consecutive days.

Furniture may be rented for unfurnished units described above. The average cost varies from $18.00 to $42.00 a month, depending on the type and quantity desired by the individual.

Before any application is accepted for Marine Corps Schools-controlled housing, personnel must physically report aboard.

Waiting period for enlisted personnel ranges up to a year.

Civilian rental housing in the Beaufort-Port Royal-Burton area is described as generally "substandard" in comparison with comparable facilities in most metropolitan areas.

There are, however, two large apartment type units, costing $56 per month, unfurnished, and $76, furnished, with utilities additional, for two and three-bedroom units.

All other civilian rental housing is generally of poor frame construction at rental rates about 35 per cent higher than in the Sea Island and Colonial Apartments mentioned above.

ARGONNE PARK—TRAILER PARK

There are 10 officer and 40 enlisted trailer sites for privately owned trailers located approximately four miles from the Depot Administration Building. Rent is $6 per month, plus utilities (approx. $8.00 monthly). There are no government owned trailers on this Depot.

GOVERNMENT HOUSING (ENLISTED)

There are 46 three bedroom units for pay grade E7; 22 two bedroom units for E6; waiting period is from four to six months, and 12 two bedroom units for pay grade E5.

RIBAUT VILLAGE—LOW COST HOUSING

This project consists of 50 two-bedroom units and is located approximately one-half mile from the Depot Administration Building. Occupancy is limited to military personnel of pay grade E4 and below. Approximate waiting period is from three to five months.

These units are all unfurnished except for kitchen stove and refrigerator. Rent is $39.00 per month plus utilities ($15.00 per month average).

WAKE VILLAGE—TITLE VIII

This project consists of 16 one bedroom units, 51 two bedroom units and 18 three bedroom units and is located approximately two miles from the Depot Administration Building. Occupancy limited to military personnel of pay grades E7, E6 and E5.

The approximate waiting period is six to eight months for one and two bedroom units and one year for three bedroom units.

All these units are unfurnished except for kitchen stove and refrigerator which may be removed from the units if the assigned personnel so desires.

Rents on these units is as follows:

1 Bedroom unit $47.30 plus utilities

Tourist Season Affects Rentals For Miami MCAS Officers and EM

Although there are only 13 family quarters available at the Marine Corps Air Station, Miami, officials report adequate off-station housing, with rental rates and availability dependent to a considerable extent on the tourist season.

MCAS Miami, under command of Col. R. C. Mangrum, USMC, controls 200 two-bedroom units at Opa Locka, which are assigned to personnel in the first three pay grades and E-4's with over seven years' service.

Normal waiting period is about two months.

Although it is "lost cost" government housing, the rent has been established at $54 per month, plus about $15 per month for utilities.

OFF STATION HOUSING

There is adequate off-station civilian housing available for personnel but due to the tourist season in the Miami area rental rates and availability of housing fluctuate.

The Station Housing Office maintains listings of civilian housing available and also maintains contact with real estate agents to assist personnel in locating housing. Civilian listings contain all types of housing from efficiency apartments to three or

WHY WHERRY PROTESTS?

Throughout the Services, there have been protests about the high rentals charged for Wherry housing.

At the Marine Corps Schools, Quantico, Va., a JOURNAL representative, making a housing survey, was advised that there is a $5 per month extra charge for units with a tile bath.

For use of a master TV antenna, the cost is $2.50 per month.

2 Bedroom unit 56.50 plus utilities
3 Bedroom unit 64.50 plus utilities
Utilities consists only of electricity (approximately $10.00 monthly) and fuel oil in the winter months (approx. $8.00 monthly).

OFF-STATION HOUSING

Two housing projects privately sponsored under Title IX of the National Housing Act are available to both officer and enlisted personnel in the Beaufort-Port Royal area, adjacent to the Depot.

The first of these is about one mile from the main gate known as Battery Park and consists of 60 individual (single) homes, 2 bedroom type and rent for $59.50 each. They are equipped with space heaters and electric hot water heaters only and utilities are charged in addition to the rental. Kitchen stoves and refrigerators may be rented at $6.00 per month per each. The waiting period is approximately three months.

The second of the Title IX developments is known as the Russell Development Company and is located near the edge of Beaufort, roughly 10 miles from the Recruit Depot, and consists of 40 individual (single) homes, three bedroom type and rent for $79.60 each. These homes are equipped with hot water heaters and venetian blinds. Utility charges are in addition to the rent. Normal waiting period is approximately three months.

TEMPORARY HOUSING

The officers Guest House and enlisted Hostess House located on the Depot are available for temporary housing for a period up to seven days. This period may be extended if sufficient vacancies exist. The rates on these rooms are $2.00 per night. There are also three Motor Courts located in the Beaufort area with the rates approximately $6.00 per night.

four bedroom houses. Two to four bedroom units can be rented either furnished or unfurnished, but the efficiency and one bedroom units are almost always furnished.

The following is a list of the types of units and their average rent per month:

Efficiency apartments and cottages, $40 to $70.

One bedroom apartments and cottages, $54 to $75.

Two bedroom apartments and houses, $65 to $90.

Three and four bedroom houses, $85 to $150.

The average rents listed above may vary slightly with the season of the year and the location of the unit. There is little difference between the rent of an unfurnished and a furnished unit. Rent is normally requested for one and in some cases two months rent in advance upon reporting for duty at Miami.

Leases are generally requested by the landlord for his protection but most are more than willing to insert a Military Release Clause to the lease.

Trailer sites are readily available in the local area and their facilities can be obtained for approximately $33 to $35 per month including utilities. Trailers are available for rent from $60 to $70 per month in addition to the $33 to $35 per month paid for the trailer site.

Some Must Wait Year For Housing At Parris Island; Many Units Substandard

The Marine Corps Recruit Depot, Parris Island, S. C., reports there are "immediate vacancies" in government quarters for majors and above, but warrant officers and company grade officers must wait 10 months to a year.

MEMO For Journal Readers

ONCE UPON A TIME not so long ago the Defense Dept. had a Chief of Information, who was directly responsible to the Secretary for PubInfo matters. Then came a much heralded "streamlining." This was Reorganization Plan No. 6.

SO TWO YEARS AGO, an Assistant Defense Secretary was placed over the Chief of Information. Then the Assistant Secretary was given a Deputy Secretary for Public Affairs; also a Deputy for Legislative Affairs.

THE ECHELONS CONTINUE, for now decision has been made to place under the Deputy Secretary, three Directors—Information, Security Review and Special Activities. Most newsmen are betting the plan will run into trouble when a hot potato problem starts to get tossed about from Director to Director to Deputy Secretary to Assistant Secretary to Secretary.

EXTENDED TIME INTERVAL required between Congressional approval of funds for military family housing and completion is shown in Air Force testimony that the Defense Dept. has yet to release funds for construction start of any of $37.5 million worth of quarters O.K.'d by the 83d Congress. Certification has been given, however, for 3020 units—actually over $2 million in excess of funds appropriated. The AF plans to start the first project in May, hopes to have 15 under way by 30 June.

NOT ALL THE TENT DWELLERS in North Africa are desert nomads. Desperate to remain together, 34 Air Force families are living in tents in Morocco. AF Sec'y Talbott calls their spirit "remarkable."

IT WAS ANYBODY'S GUESS in the Army this week, on the basis of top Pentagon appointments, whether the next Army CofS would be Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther or Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor. Designated to be Vice CofS was Lt. Gen. Williston B. Palmer, a 1918 USMA classmate of Gen. Gruenther. Named Deputy CofS for Logistics was Lt. Gen. Carter Magruder, USMA '23, who has been CofS in Tokyo to Gen. Taylor, USMA '22.

GEN. GRUENTHER will get the top job, if the President does not feel his Services are more urgently needed at NATO. It's a big "if."

EXECUTIVE BRANCH INABILITY to come up with one solidly supported Survivor Benefits plan for the Armed Services when the chips were down jeopardizes Congressional action this session. It had been thought the stature of the 1954 Kaplan Commission, which made the most comprehensive study of this subject in history, would result in final Administration determination on a single proposal. Instead, the Defense Dept., Budget Bureau, Veterans Administration and Department of Health, Education and Welfare are not yet aligned behind one plan.

IN AN AREA where confusion is easy at best, the varied suggestions for changes in "hodge podge" Survivor Benefits laws will slow up the legislative process. As of the moment, odds are no better than 50-50 on passage of new legislation at this session.

TASK FORCE RAZOR will carry sharp Army hopes during Yucca Flat atomic tests late this month. About 800 Razor men and 250 armored vehicles from Camp Irwin, Calif., will move through the blast area in a simulated breakthrough attack. The Army is counting heavily on the upcoming test to show that its increasing armor strength can function effectively in nuclear warfare.

COMPETITION IS GROWING for first claims on top-flight AF personnel. Heretofore, Gen. Curtis E. LeMay, C-in-C of SAC, had undisputed top grabs in the combat commands. Generally speaking, SAC still has No. 1 priority. But other commands are putting in stronger pitches for available manpower resources. It's reported that the expanding Air Defense Command, whose importance is growing all the time, now takes top priority, even over SAC, in certain officer categories.

GEN. LeMAY'S PRESTIGE has been fortified by his designation as C-in-C of SAC, instead of "commander." The JCS asked for the change, since he reports directly to them. The only other AF officer who has a C-in-C title and who does not head a joint command is Lt. Gen. William H. Tunner, USAF C-in-C. That's because his opposite number, Army Gen. Anthony C. McAuliffe is C-in-C USAREUR.

AN ATOMIC EXPERT will take over as Army Deputy Surgeon General on 1 June. He is Brig. Gen. James P. Cooney, MC, USA, who at 52 stands a good chance later of appointment to the top medical job. A veteran of numerous assignments relating to nuclear medicine, the new Deputy is now directing Logex-55, a huge logistics maneuver at Ft. Lee, Va. He's the first medical general to hold such an assignment.

PRESIDENT EISENHOWER IS ELIGIBLE to join a new organization in the Nation's Capital. It's the West Point Society, which will activate a D. C. chapter on 5 May with a 6 p.m. meeting at Ft. McNair. Pioneer members include Maj. Gen. Henry D. Todd, USMA '90, and Lt. James R. Effer, USMA '53. Should the President (USMA '15), or anyone else desire details, they are available from Col. B. F. Castle, USAF-Ret., at 1625 Eye Street, N.W., or Col. F. F. Zitman, USMA '32, 4447 Volta Place, N.W., Washington 7, D. C.

REDUCTION IN ROTC units is under study by the Air Force. There are now 188 in operation, which will produce about 10,900 graduates between now and 30 April 1956. The AF plans to level off at about 7000 new ROTC lieutenants per year.

FRENCH COOKING hasn't taken command among U. S. Army troops in the Paris area. Most popular food in the Seine Area Command is southern fried chicken; second is apple pie—just plain, not French apple.

USS FORRESTAL DUTY is being used as Navy reenlistment incentive. Sailors are being told that assignment to the huge carrier is "highly probable" for men reenlisting in the near future, providing their rates are included in the ship's allowance. There will probably be similar action for the other Forrestal class vessels.

DIVISION REDUCTIONS in the Army from the once-planned 24 to the new objective of 18 undoubtedly will mean stepped-up shuffles of division command assignments to give more officers a crack at this vital career advancement duty. Best guess is that few will serve in the top division slot for more than 18 months.

SUMMER TIME WILL MEAN moving time for increasing numbers of military personnel. All the Services are striving to adjust transfers to coincide with end of school years for dependents. Significantly, the Army is starting Operation Gyroscope in July.

DON'T LET RETIREMENT INCOME FADE AWAY...

It can... but it won't if part of your current earnings are wisely invested. The reason many people have invested in securities over and over is that in the last 10 years, the purchasing power of the dollar has declined to approximately 52%!!

You can help combat possible future fluctuations in the purchasing power of the dollar by acquiring dividend paying securities through convenient purchases of Mutual Fund shares... out of present earnings.

For several years we have acted as financial counsellors to thousands of civilian, military and naval personnel. We have helped them solve the problem of providing extra retirement income and start on the way to a sound financial future through the regular purchase of Mutual Fund shares. We'd like to help you, too.

Just mail us a postcard with your name and address for our free booklet, "The Modern Way to Invest." We'll include complete, free information on how you can start a plan to help provide you with extra retirement income.

EVERYTHING THAT ROLLS HAS TO

STOP AND EVERY

BRAKING PROBLEM IS DIFFERENT

brakes just about every

WHEN Bendix four-wheel brakes were introduced to the American motoring public in 1925 the way was opened for safely controlling today's swift, high-powered cars. Since then we've built millions of brakes for many kinds of vehicles, each with its own peculiar braking problem.

From the day we patented the first airplane brakes, for example, stopping heavy planes has gotten tougher and tougher. When a large airplane comes roaring in for a landing it's like stopping 150 passenger cars going 60 m.p.h. Ordinary brakes and lining couldn't do it. So we invented a completely new lining called Cerametallic† for use on our segmented rotor brake—and that did the job!

Many years ago we pioneered power braking for trucks—known today as Bendix* Hydrovac*. What we learned building millions of these dependable brakes has been incorporated in today's power brakes for passenger cars. Now Bendix "Low Pedal" Power Brakes have been selected by more car makers than other types. We also make a power brake that can be installed on your present car; you can buy it from car dealers, service stations and independent garages.

Other brake products made by our Bendix Products Division at South Bend, Ind., include heavy-duty systems for farm tractors and off-the-road equipment and what we call Factory-New Lined Brake Shoes. These brand-new, deluxe shoes, equipped with the exact lining recommended by your car's manufacturer, can be installed by your dealer.

For years our Eclipse Machine Division at Elmira, N. Y., has built Bendix* Coaster Brakes for bicycles. Last year they brought out a foot-operated "power Everything that rolls!

"brake" that gives your boy or girl 32% more stopping power and lets them pedal easier because it has a two-shift transmission. It's called Bendix® Multi-Speed Coaster Brake, and every American bicycle maker now offers it. Make sure it's on your child's next bike because it is safer.

Our Marshall-Eclipse Division at Troy, N. Y., turns out millions of pieces of brake blocks and linings every month. Used as factory equipment on many new cars, you should specify Bendix Eclipse lining when you need your brakes relined.

So you can see that Bendix is in the brake business. It is another part of America's most diverse manufacturing operation. For more about Bendix and how it might contribute to your business, the booklet illustrated will be mailed on request.

SERVICE FAMILY NOTES

THE Army Chief of Engineers, Maj. Gen. Samuel D. Sturgis and Mrs. Sturgis are to entertain the Inspector of Engineers of the French Army, General Robert Pinson, at dinner at Ft. Prentiss, and Mrs. Prentiss with a dinner and reception.

General and Mrs. Sturgis are going to New York, 5 May, to attend the unveiling of the restored monument, covering the grave in old St. Paul's churchyard of the famous French Engineer Etienne Marie Bechet, Sieur de Rochefontaine, who served under General Washington and in 1794, when a Congressional act founded a Corps of Artillerists and Engineers, he commanding the unit which evolved into the U. Role Of Service Wife Told By Eglin Base Commander

■ ELGIN AFB, FLA. The Air Force Wife was the theme of the recent April Officers Wives Club luncheon. Col. Frank H. Mears, Base Commander, spoke on this subject to more than 200 Air Force wives present.

Colonel Mears stressed the point that the wife has great influence on her Air Force husband toward his happiness and success, and the subsequent success of the Air Force in accomplishing its mission. He brought out the point that the Air Force is big business, in fact, that so large an organization as "General Motors could fit into one corner of SAC." He explained that each wife has a proper role to play in supporting her husband as a teammate to help present the correct big picture of a successful Air Force.

The luncheon was sponsored by the wives of the 3205th Drone Group with Mrs. E. F. Hoover as chairman. Heading one of Mrs. Hoover's most important committees were Mrs. A. J. Bregar and Mrs. G. W. Might who were responsible for the creation of the table decorations with the assistance of many other Drone Group wives. These decorations were doll-like replicas of the AF wife engaged in varied activities around the clock.

The 25 dolls which represented wives scrubbing, water-skiing, packing, cooking, watching children and entertaining, etc. were painstakingly hand made from coat hangers and crepe paper in bright colors, complete with appropriate props. The board table was decorated with two of the dolls with a low centerpiece of spring flowers in pastels. The poem entitled "The Air Force Wife" was printed and placed at each plate by Mrs. D. B. Durbin.

The business meeting was conducted by Mrs. F. P. Gallo, president, who had the secretary, Mrs. J. T. Gravey, read Mrs. Patrick W. Timberlake's letter of appreciation for the farewell gift of silver candelabra, presented her by the Eglin OWC, of which Mrs. Timberlake has been honorary president.

Mrs. Hoover, as chairman for the luncheon, awarded door prizes to Mrs. G. E. Sullivan, an 1847 Rogers silverplated covered vegetable dish; to Mrs. F. J. Hancock, a similar silver pitcher; and to the newest newcomer, Mrs. J. R. Lichtenstein, the floral centerpiece.

Single Set Of Contract Cost Rules Gains Favor

Although the memo released with the proposed new cost allowance principles stated that the new rules would apply only to cost reimbursement contracts, many officials in the Pentagon and accounting organization believe one set of contract cost rules should serve all purposes.

They assert it would simplify paperwork if used as a working guide in contract negotiation and should be legally binding for all types of contracts.

Martin Increases Shares

The Annual Meeting of Stockholders of The Glenn L. Martin Company was held 25 April at the Company offices, Middle River, Md. The stockholders approved the proposed amendment to the Certificate of Incorporation to increase the authorized number of capital shares of stock from 3,000,000 to 6,000,000, and re-elected the Directors whose terms expired.

Changes In Procurement Procedures Urged By GAO On Basis Of 2-Year Study

A two-year survey of the procurement practices of the Army Ordnance Corps has been completed by the General Accounting Office and forwarded to Congress and Secretary Stevens of the Army. In an accompanying letter dated 15 Apr., Comptroller General Campbell states that the survey covered 700 Ordnance contracts totaling 9.7 billion dollars.

The GAO points out that there are three sets of regulations governing Ordnance contracts. These are the Armed Services Procurement Regulations (ASPR), the Army Procurement Procedure (APP), and the Ordnance Procurement Instruction (OPI). In addition, there are Dept. of Defense Directives, Dept. of Defense Instructions, Army Procurement Circulars, Ordnance Corps Technical Instructions, Ordnance Corps Orders, Ordnance Corps Pamphlets, and Ordnance Corps Manuals.

Even these "various layers of procurement regulations" do not adequately cover price redetermination contracts and this has resulted in "very extensive misuse" of this type of contract, the report charges. No provision has been made for the use of incentive type contracts and this, the GAO alleges, represents an unwarranted deviation from Defense procurement policies.

While detailed criticism is made throughout the report it is summarized in the following excerpt:

"The primary purpose of this report is to make recommendations on significant matters which, in our opinion, require consideration by the Secretary of Defense or the Secretary of the Army (for Army and Ordnance matters) to strengthen procurement procedures in relation to present practices. In support of these recommendations we have included comment on the more important areas of our findings, which relate principally to:

"1. Questionable contracting practices, such as misuse of price redetermination contracts, use of unlimited upward price revision, price redetermination after completion of performance, and cost-plus-a-percentage-of-cost subcontracting.

"2. Weaknesses in negotiation and award procedures, such as the shifting of negotiation responsibility between field offices, ineffectual negotiation with large contractors, and inconsistent treatment of profit on facility-type charges in production contracts.

"3. Inadequate defense-wide procurement regulations, and the multiple layers of 'implementing' procedures and instructions.

"4. Lack of recognized cost principles and audit guides applicable to price redetermination contracts.

"5. Ineffective liaison between contracting and audit representatives.

"6. Unrealistic contract delivery schedules.

"7. Failure to obtain license rights to reproduce items developed under Government research and development contracts.

"8. Excessive cost of steel procured by shell contractors.

"It is recognized that the Ordnance Corps was faced with many serious problems as a direct result of the Korean conflict. Some of the same problems undoubtedly would again arise in event of a similar military emergency or an all-out war. We believe, however, that the implementation of the following recommendations, although intended primarily to strengthen present procedures, would materially aid in the establishment of a sounder basic structure of regulations and operating procedures upon which procurement, even under emergency conditions, could be carried out more effectively.

Recommendations To Army Secretary

"In connection with the principal types of deficiencies observed in our survey of Ordnance procurement, and after recognizing numerous improvements, we recommend action by the Secretary of the Army to further improve procurement procedures and controls with respect to the matters presented below. Certain of these (items 1, 2, 3, 6, 7, 13, and 16), applicable to defense procurement generally, have also been included in recommendations to the Secretary of Defense. However, pending defense action, consideration should be given by the Secretary of the Army for action within his area of responsibility.

1. Unlimited upward price revisions

Prohibit the use of price redetermination contracts providing for unlimited upward price revision.

2. Price redetermination after completion

Limit the use of price redetermination contracts providing for redetermination of prices after completion of performance, to special conditions and with individual justification in each instance.

3. Submission of cost data under price redetermination contracts

Expand procurement procedures to require that price redetermination contracts permitting optional periodic redetermination include a contractual requirement for regular periodic submission of cost data by the contractor.

4. Audit liaison

Establish a liaison arrangement at each of the larger procurement offices for a top Army Audit Agency representative to serve in an advisory capacity to the contracting officer.

5. Use of incentive-type contracts

Revise administrative instructions to encourage use of incentive-type contracts containing designated sliding scales of profit in cases where reasonably close targets may be established at or near the beginning of production under the contract.

6. Price redetermination contracts for research

Limit the use of price redetermination contracts for research and development to special circumstances where cost-type contracts cannot be used.

7. CPFC subcontracting

Prohibit the use of CPFC subcontracts under price redetermination or incentive-type prime contracts.

8. Use of disputes procedures

Revise the Army Procurement procedure regarding exercise of the disputes article in price redetermination contracts to encourage the contracting officer to avail himself of this contractual provision in cases where he is not satisfied that a fair price is otherwise obtainable.

9. Maintaining bargaining power

Reemphasize the importance of conducting negotiations to the fullest extent practicable while other potential sources of supply are being actively considered, and before a supplier has been authorized to incur facility and production costs.

10. Changes in requirements during negotiations

Require that whenever a substantial change is made in the Government's requirements in the course of negotiation, for example, a material change in the delivery schedule, that eliminated bidders be given further opportunity to make proposals under the revised requirements.

11. Shifting of negotiation responsibility between field offices

Revise administrative delegations to avoid shifting of the negotiation responsibility for an individual contract between field offices.

12. Centralized negotiations with large contractors

Give consideration to the realignment of contracting authority in the Army Ordnance Corps to concentrate negotiations with the very large contractors at the point or points at which the strongest negotiation teams can be effectively utilized, as opposed to the present arrangement of having Ordnance districts officially responsible for such negotiations within their geographic boundaries.

13. Fixed overhead rates

Prohibit use of fixed overhead allowances or fixed rates of overhead in cost-type contracts, except where they are subject to retroactive revision.

14. Identification of negotiated profit element

Identify the element of estimated profit contained in negotiated contract prices, and make this information a matter of record in the negotiation files.

15. Guides for recognition of fair profit factors

Expand administrative guides to convey something of the "philosophy" for recognition of factors whereby a fair profit for price redetermination contracts may be measured.

16. Profit on facility-type charges

In the absence of Defense policy concerning profit on facility-type charges, take administrative action to apply appropriate restrictions on the inclusion of such profit in negotiated contract prices, as well as to insure consistency in practice.

17. Realistic delivery schedules

Reemphasize, with respect to negotiated contracts, the initial establishment of delivery schedules that are possible of achievement and the necessity for reasonable adherence to those schedules.

18. Penalties for delinquent deliveries

Provide for use an enforcement of appropriate penalty clauses where the delivery schedule is an important factor in the selection of a contractor and the determination of the price to be paid.

has just been ordered to report for duty at Headquarters on 1 September, will reach the statutory retirement age of 62 the following month. He now commands Fleet Marine Force, Atlantic, at Norfolk, Va.

Lt. Gen. Gerald C. Thomas, USMC, Commandant of the Marine Corps Schools, Quantico, Va., does not appear to be a likely successor to General Shepherd since he attains the statutory retirement age on 29 Oct. 1956.

Lt. Gen. Robert H. Pepper, USMC, was 60 this April and would not be able to complete a four year term of office as Commandant before reaching the mandatory retirement age. He now heads FMF, Pacific, Pearl Harbor, T. H.

Lt. Gen. William O. Brice, USMC, will be 58 in December and would have enough time remaining to serve a four year term. His appointment to the top spot, however, would be unusual, since a Naval Aviator has never held the post of Commandant. He is now Director of Aviation.

The President normally names a successor in the Fall preceding the retirement of a Commandant.

Here is the full slate of Marine Corps general officer shifts announced by General Shepherd:

Lt. Gen. William O. Brice, USMC. From Director of Aviation and Assistant Commandant of Air, to CG, FMF, Pacific, Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, on 1 Sept.

Lt. Gen. Robert H. Pepper, USMC. From CG, FMF, Pacific, to CG, MCB, Camp Lejeune, NC, 1 Sept.

Lt. Gen. Oliver P. Smith, USMC. From CG, FMF, Atlantic Naval Base, Norfolk, Va., to Headquarters Marine Corps, 1 Sept.

Maj. Gen. Alfred H. Noble, USMC. From CG, MCB, Camp Lejeune, to CG, FMF, Atlantic, on 1 Sept.

Maj. Gen. Reginald H. Ridgely, jr., USMC. From Director of Personnel, to CG, 2d Marine Division, 1 July.

Maj. Gen. Edward W. Snedeker, USMC. From CG, 2d Marine Division, to Assistant Chief of Staff, G-3, Headquarters Marine Corps, 1 Aug.

Maj. Gen. Robert O. Bare, USMC. From Director, Educational Center, Marine Corps Schools, Quantico, Va., to Director of Personnel, 15 June.

Brig. Gen. Thomas A. Wornham, USMC. From G-3, Headquarters Marine Corps, to CG, 3d Marine Division, 1 July.

Maj. Gen. James P. Rieseley, USMC. From CG, 3d Marine Division, to Deputy Commander, FMF, Pacific, 1 Aug.

Maj. Gen. Christian F. Schlitz, USMC. From CG, Aircraft, FMF, Pacific, to Director of Aviation and Assistant Commandant of the Marine Corps for Air, 1 Aug.

Maj. Gen. Clayton C. Jerome, USMC. From CG, Aircraft, FMF, Atlantic, to CG, Aircraft, FMF, Pacific, 1 Aug.

Maj. Gen. Vernon E. Meggee, USMC. From duty as Deputy Commander, FMF, Pacific, to CG, Aircraft, FMF, Atlantic, 1 Aug.

Brig. Gen. Nels H. Nelson, USMC. From Assistant Chief of Staff, G-1, Headquarters, to CG, Troop Training Unit, Amphibious Training Command, Pacific Fleet, 1 Aug.

Col. James P. Berkeley, USMC. Upon promotion to the rank of Brigadier General, about 1 July, 1955, from duty as C of S, 1st Marine Division, to Assistant Chief of Staff, G-1, Headquarters.

Brig. Gen. Henry B. Paige, USMC. From Assistant Commander, 1st Marine Division, to duty as Director, Marine Corps Educational Center, MCS, Quantico, 1 July.

Brig. Gen. Alan Shapley, USMC. From CG, Troop Training Team, Amphibious Group, Western Pacific, to Assistant Commander, 1st Marine Division, 1 July.

Brig. Gen. Robert B. Luckey, USMC. From CG, Force Troops, FMF, Atlantic, Camp Lejeune, to Assistant G-3, Headquarters.

Brig. Gen. Jack P. Juhan, USMC. From CG, Marine Corps Clothing Depot, Philadelphia, Pa., to CG, Marine Corps Supply Center, Albany, Ga., 15 July.

Col. Harold D. Hansen, USMC. From duty at Headquarters Marine Corps Washington (upon promotion to the rank of Brigadier General, about 1 July, 1955) to CG, Marine Corps Clothing Depot.

Gen. Smythe's Duty

Maj. Gen. George W. Smythe, USA, who has been Deputy Commander of the Second Army at Ft. Meade, Md., will replace Maj. Gen. John M. MacDonald, USA, as head of the Army Section of the Military Aid Advisory Group on Formosa.

An article in last week's issue of THE JOURNAL said General Smythe would succeed Maj. Gen. William C. Chase, USA-Ret., who is MAAG Chief on Formosa.

It is now learned that General Chase will be kept on active duty at least until September, barring a change in current plans.

Whether General Smythe will get General Chase's post or whether another officer will be named for this assignment remains to be seen.

General MacDonald's new duty has not yet been announced.

LT. COL. HELEN M. ABRAMOSKA, ANC, receives from Col. Charles E. Cheever, USA-Ret., the 300,000th policy in force issued by the United Services Automobile Association. Colonel Cheever is general manager of the Association at its San Antonio, Tex., headquarters.

Study Progress Payments

A single standardized contract clause for progress payments is still being studied by the Services with little chance of early agreement partly because the disbursing procedures vary with each Service. However, a single set of application forms may soon be adopted.

Could Drop Stitch In Uniform Plan

There's a growing danger the Army plan to begin issue of the new green uniform in September '56 will be rumpiled.

Pentagon officials admitted late this week that the Defense Department has yet to give the necessary green light for award by the Army of "cut, make and trim" contracts for the new uniform cloth.

Unless these processing contracts are made soon, the uniform timetable will be delayed. The Army reportedly is seeking an early decision.

An official Defense Department release said the Army would start wearing black shoes (used with the Green Uniform) after September of next year.

That press release reported adoption of a standardized men's low-quarter dress shoe for all the Services, which will be black for the Army, Navy and Air Force and dark brown mahogany for the Marine Corps.

Marine Commandant "Argued" Against Cut; Could Keep 27,000 For Added $75 Million

General Lemuel C. Shepherd, Jr., Commandant of the Marine Corps, has told a Congressional Committee he "argued very strongly for more men" during the coming fiscal year.

Under close questioning by members of a House Subcommittee on Appropriations, the Commandant admitted that he asked for 215,000 men, but Defense Secretary Wilson and President Eisenhower ruled in favor of a smaller force.

Asked if he suggested the cut, General Shepherd answered, "No, sir, I can assure you I did not. As a matter of fact, I argued very strongly for more men."

The General said the goal for the Marines was "originally" set at 215,000, but "was changed by a direction of the President and Secretary of Defense to the figures I have just given you, 205,000 (for the end of the current fiscal year) and 193,000 (for the end of fiscal '56)."

Representative Daniel J. Flood (D-Pa.) asked: "Do you agree with that decision under all the circumstances?"

General Shepherd answered, "I accepted it, sir, as the decision of my superior."

In answer to a question about how much it would cost to restore the Marine manpower cut, General Shepherd said the Corps could retain for "approximately $75 million" the 27,000 men it will lose as a result of the personnel slash.

Many Pitfalls Beset Service Legislative Proposals On Path To Final Enactment

THE shop-worn story about the Western Union messenger who got lost in the Pentagon and came out two days later a full colonel has its Capitol Hill counterpart in the one about the visiting high school student who lost a chemistry term paper in the Senate dining room and later found it had been referred to the Atomic Energy Committee for study and report.

Both anecdotes underscore the "confusion" which the uninitiated observer sees in every action of the sprawling Defense structure and the national legislature.

WHEN THE PENTAGON AND THE CAPITOL JOIN forces, as they do in creating the majority of all new military laws, the average interested observer finds himself even more bewildered.

Confusing as the problem may appear, the process of creating a new military law is as carefully drawn as a battle plan.

There are a number of ways in which desired legislation may be drafted and proposed to the Congress, but as a general rule major efforts follow a series of similar steps which are relatively simple and easy to understand.

THE PENDING PROPOSAL to add thousands of Regular officers to the Services can be used to trace the process. Here is how it works:

First, the necessity for legislation is recognized by Defense officials.

In this instance, the need has developed out of the fact that the Services will be required to maintain large peace-time forces far into the future. In the past, peace-time forces have been small. As soon as emergencies ended, most Reservists were returned to inactive duty.

Since the end of WWII, however, Defense Department manpower requirements have called for the retention of large numbers of Reservists, and it is expected that the bulk of these officers will be needed on the active rolls for many years. Thus, the Regular ranks can be expanded, giving Reservists a chance to integrate as career officers.

With the need for new legislation apparent, Defense leaders sound out the White House to find out if the President is willing to support the proposed legislation.

If he is—and speculation indicates that the President favors the integration plan—the Defense Department goes to work in earnest. Reports and recommendations are requested from the Secretaries of the Army, Navy and Air Force. These separate reports are studied, usually by a joint board or committee appointed by the Defense Secretary, and a proposed draft of legislation, usually representing a compromise between varying views, is drafted to put the plan into effect.

When the draft plan is completed—possibly during May—the next step is to submit the proposal, together with cost estimates, to the Bureau of the Budget. This Bureau, which is the President's financial advisor, determines whether the need is great enough to justify the expenditure and, if so, whether the amount requested to put the program into operation is too much or too little.

The careful scrutiny which the Budget applies to legislative proposals accounts for further delay in the processing of the needed legislation. Often, weeks and sometimes many months pass before the Budget sends the measure back to the Defense Department with its recommendations.

If it disapproves the plan, the Pentagon knows that further effort is fruitless for the time being.

When the plan is approved by the Budget, the Defense Department sends it to Capitol Hill with a request that it be introduced. Messages, with copies of the proposal attached, go to both the Speaker of the House and the President of the Senate. These officials, in turn, send the draft legislation to a committee.

MILITARY LEGISLATION, such as the integration plan, is referred to the Armed Services Committee in each house. Once it reaches the Committee it either can be pigeonholed (for reasons which the Committee believes sound) or turned over to the Chairman or one of the members to be introduced on the House or Senate floor.

After the proposal has been introduced, it can still die on the vine if the Committee chairman (again for reasons which are considered sound) schedules no hearings on the bill.

In most instances, however, the bill is introduced, placed on the committee calendar, and hearings (usually conducted by a subcommittee) are announced. Top officials are called to explain the bill and answer questions.

Hearings often are extended, with witnesses testifying both for and against the plan. In the case of the integration bill, witnesses would be called from the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps, as well as the Defense Department manpower office, and probably would include representatives of the various Reserve and National Guard organizations.

Such hearings usually are "open," which means that the public may sit in the Committee rooms and listen to the testimony. When all of the witnesses have been heard, the subcommittee goes into "Executive" session to "mark up" the bill. This means that the group meets behind closed doors to make changes in the plan, if changes are considered necessary, and to prepare the bill for presentation to the full committee.

FINAL COMMITTEE ACTION can either "kill" the bill or recommend its enactment with or without changes in the subcommittee plan. The measure, if recommended, is then sent back to the House or Senate chamber together with a report which details the need, scope and cost of the bill and urges its passage. On occasion there may also be a minority report filed by committee members opposed to the measure.

The report is made on the floor of the House or Senate by the subcommittee or committee chairman, and both the bill and the report are printed and made available to members of the Congress. During this process, the bill is placed on a House or Senate calendar where it remains until called up for debate.

The procedures for placing a bill on a calendar and calling it up for debate are complicated and differ in each house. They are not essential, however, to a clear understanding of the steps involved in making a new law.

When the proposal is called up for action on the House or Senate floor, members enter into debate on the plan. This is sometimes spirited, sometimes routine. Sometimes it lasts only for a short period; other times for days or weeks.

At the conclusion of the debate, the measure is voted. If disapproved, that's the end of the matter. If approved, the measure goes through the clerical process and is sent to the other house.

An important aspect of the legislative procedure to keep in mind is the fact that both houses of Congress are equal and no Congressional action is final until both have approved a bill in the same form.

While the House Armed Services Committee is holding hearings on a bill, the Senate Armed Services Committee may take similar action at the same time, or the Senate Committee may hold earlier or later hearings or take no action.

WHEN A MILITARY BILL PASSES the House and is sent to the Senate it is voted only after the Senate Armed Services Committee has favorably reported it (or its own version of the same bill). Even though the House Committee has completed exhaustive hearings on the matter, the Senate Committee holds its own hearings and makes its own report. This sometimes leads to changes in the bill as approved by the other house.

When the measure is voted on the Senate floor, it may be in the same form passed by the House or in a different form. If the same, and if approved, the bill is then sent to the White House for final action by the President, who may either sign the bill into law or veto it.

If the Senate measure differs from the House version, it is returned to that body for further consideration. The House Armed Services Committee may ask that the Senate plan be accepted as is or it may disagree with the Senate version. If accepted, and the House approves, the plan then goes to the White House. If the House disagrees, the measure must then be sent to a conference committee (made up of members of the House and Senate Armed Services Committees) where an attempt is made to iron out differences. When the conference group has agreed on a final bill, the measure goes back to each house for another vote and if approved is sent to the White House. If either the Senate or House refuse to accept the action of the conference committee, the measure may be re-committed to that group until a compromise acceptable to all can be worked out.

It is worth repeating that a bill cannot become law until it has passed both houses of Congress in the same form and has been signed by the President.

The pitfalls which face a proposed law are numerous, as this account of the legislative process indicates.

A NEW MILITARY LAW may never get started on its way if the Pentagon feels that Service leaders have failed to demonstrate its essentiality. Or it may die an early death if the President withholds his approval or the Budget Bureau turns thumbs down.

Even after it has reached Capitol Hill, the measure is not on safe ground. It may die in committee without being introduced, it may be introduced and no further action taken, or the committee may shelve the plan after hearings have demonstrated that it is not workable or is too costly.

Should the measure safely hurdle all of these obstacles, it still can be voted down by either house or both or, if passed, be vetoed by the President.

The process is complicated and sometimes confusing, but a basic understanding of the steps involved in the creation of a new law clearly demonstrates that the "obstacles" and "pitfalls" are intended as safeguards to assure sound legislation.

These safeguards often serve to give the opposition strength enough to kill a measure the Services consider essential, or to so amend it as to drastically reduce its effectiveness.

THE PROCESS ALSO PERMITS, as has happened many times, the enactment of Service legislation which is highly desirable but which the administration in power does not want (usually for fiscal reasons).

All Service legislation does not originate in the Department of Defense; in fact, hundreds of bills are introduced independently each session. Many of these are enacted with the support of the Department and some become law over the objections of the Department because Congress feels they are necessary and desirable. That is the democratic process.
